Fear MacCosham Fire Loss Near Million

Two; Perhaps Three Take Lives In City

Two suicides and possibly a third Thursday night are being investigated by city police.

An hour after a Montreal man's death note was left in the superintendent's office of a city hospital, his body was found in the rear hallway, a bullet through his head and a .44 calibre revolver in his right hand. He was identified as Joe Veilleux, 56, Montreal, a member of the National Seaman's association.

The man came to the hospital for treatment at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, returning about 7:00 p.m. A few minutes later he was seen to leave. Then the note was found and a search was launched. The note said "This is the only way."

Mrs. A. Jolicoeur, Grande Prairie, is believed to have drowned in the Saskatchewan river after a plunge from the High Level bridge, the second death leap of the year from that structure and the second suicide jump from an Edmonton bridge within a week. Sunday night Peter Walinski, 62 jumped from Dawson bridge.

A report about 6:00 p.m. Thursday said the body of a woman floated beneath the Low Level bridge. Two policemen in a canoe got to within 50 yards of the body when it was pulled under by the current. A prolonged search failed to recover the body.

Mrs. Jolicoeur's purse was found on the 150-foot-high traffic deck of the High Level bridge at 10:00 p.m. She had been missing since 4:00 p.m., when she left the Capitol Service station, operated by her brother, Victor Vaillant, just outside the city on the St. Albert trail.

While police were searching the river bank they came upon a man's hat and jacket near the Grierson dump. Fresh tracks led to the water. None returned. An identification card in the jacket carried the name of John Strypka, 70-year-old North Edmonton man. His present address is unknown, and police, unable to locate him, believe he drowned Thursday night.

Towering Smoke Draws Thousands to General Alarm Blaze

Described by Fire Chief James MacGregor as "the most stubborn Edmonton fire in years" a general alarm blaze caused heavy loss to building and contents of the MacCosham Storage and Distributing Co. Ltd. warehouse on 109 st. Thursday. Thousands saw this general view of the blaze as firemen and equipment from all city halls battled the flames for more than five hours. Another picture of the fire appears on Page 3.

Firemen Battle For Five Hours: Damage Heavy To Stored Goods

Loss to building and contents may reach nearly $1,000,000 in a general-alarm fire of unknown origin that swept the four-storey warehouse building of MacCosham Storage and Distributing Co. Ltd., 10301 109 st., Thursday.

Thousands viewed the fire, which was discovered shortly after 7:00 p.m. when smoke was seen pouring from a window at the southeast corner of the fourth storey by Verne Gunther employed at the Brant Welding Co. shop on 108 st.

The blaze is believed to have started in a room where a large amount of excelsior, used in packing, was stored.

With water from 11 hose lines playing on the flames, fire fighters from every city hall were able to confine the actual fire to the fourth floor but it was five hours before the "all-out" signal was sounded.

The flames spread rapidly to every part of the top floor, consuming a large amount of stored householders' furniture.

Later the tar and sand roof caught fire and caved in before firemen wearing respirators, braving falling debris, fought their way to the blazing top storey and poured tons of water on the flames from three lines of hose.

Only one person, Charles McLean, janitor, is known to have been in the building when the fire started.

Mr. McLean was in his room on the third floor when the fire started. He made good his escape.

Although the lower three storeys escaped fire damage, water and smoke were expected to cause almost complete loss to goods and equipment stored on the lower floors and in the basement.

R. V. MacCosham, manager of the MacCosham company and owner of the building, said it was difficult to make an accurate estimate of losses.

"If we have to rebuild it will cost about $300,000. If contents prove to be a total loss the value of destroyed property will run to at least $500,000 and probably close to $700,000," he said.

Furniture, groceries, household effects and machinery were stored and accommodation was taxed to capacity, Mr. MacCosham said.

Firms in the building include Automatic Electric Company of Canada Ltd., Edmonton Associated Wholesale Ltd., and G. H. Wood and Co. Ltd., sanitation products.

Stolen From Club, $452 Recovered

Recovery of $452 stolen from the Monaron club, 9810 Jasper ave., was announced Thursday by Det. Ins. Bert Petheram. This is believed to be the full amount taken when the club was held up last Monday night.

Joseph Studholm, who pleaded guilty Thursday to the robbery, was remanded in custody one week for sentence.

City Buys 115 Huts

OTTAWA, (CP) -- War Assets Corporation announced sale of 115 prefabricated huts at Edmonton airport to the city of Edmonton.

First President May be Orlando

ROME, (AP) -- Grizzled, 86-year-old Victor Emmanuel Orlando won wide mention Thursday as a likely compromise candidate for first president of Italy's new republic. Orlando, only survivor of the Big Four of Versailles, was being proposed, political observers said, because as a Sicilian he would be able to repair the schism shown at the polls between the industrial north -- which favored the republic -- and the south -- which supported the House of Savoy.

It appeared likely, however, that Orlando would face powerful opposition from the communists, third strongest party in last week-end's elections.

Dominion To Act In Loggers' Strike

By H.R. Hardy

OTTAWA, -- Failure of the International Woodworkers in British Columbia to accept the recommendations of Chief Justice Sloan and return to work in box factories to produce fruit containers, is expected to bring drastic federal action

It was learned the government contemplates placing a controller in charge of at least 10 of the larger box manufacturing plants, and will provide for the operation of these plants and for a supply of raw material.

This action is to be taken in view of the critical situation in respect to British Columbia's highly perishable fruit crop

KAMLOOPS, (CP) -- Prairie centres may be short of annual strawberry supplies unless there is an early settlement of the millworkers strike.

Thousands of cases of berries are ready for market, but producers are without containers.

Former Salesman Awaits Sentence

John W. Sanderson, Edmonton, former Victory Bond salesman, was found guilty in supreme court Thursday by Mr. Justice Hugh John Macdonald of forging and uttering William M. Charles $200 on terms requiring him to pay over or account for that amount to Jean Willis and Susan Boyle and fraudulently omitting to do so.

He was remanded in custody until Friday afternoon for sentence.

Evidence was that the accused was given $200 by Mr. Charles in payment for the $200 Ninth Victory Loan bond, and later when Mr. Charles went to a bank to pick up his bond there was no trace of its having been paid for.

Ask New Status Temporary Staff

The civic temporary war employes committee, under chairmanship of Ald. Bowcott, Thursday recommended that temporary and seasonal employes who entered the civic service prior to Dec. 22, 1941, be given permanent status.

$1,500,000 Jewels Vanish In Germany

FRANKFURT, GERMANY, (AP) -- German royal jewels worth $1,500,000 vanished from a German castle while it was in use as an American officers' club and an official announcement Thursday hinted Americans were suspected of their theft.

A.F.L. Sea Strike Deemed 'Certain'

WASHINGTON, (AP) -- American Federation of Labor seamen stalked from ships by the thousands Thursday and threatened to beat Congress of Industrial Organizations maritime unions to the punch on a general shipping strike.

Two officials of A.F.L. sailors unions said in New York a full-scale strike of 62,000 members seemed certain, perhaps "right away" or perhaps within a week.

In the meantime, the A.F.L. seamen straggled back up the gangplanks after holding meetings in the major salt water ports.

The government already is struggling in negotiations to head off a country-wide C.I.O. maritime strike set for June 15.

A.F.L. union chiefs said the meetings voted to rest navy or coast guard personnel as strike-breakers if they try to run union ships in case of a strike -- as promised by President Truman.

Franco Accuses Russia, France

MADRID, (AP) -- The Falange party newspaper Arriba said Thursday that only Russia would benefit from a world-wide rupture of relations with Spain and asked if the United States and Britain "want the iron curtain to begin at Algeciras (Spain)."

Meanwhile, the Franco government maintained in an official statement that Spain would rather endure "sacrificing isolation" than submit to foreign interference in her internal affairs.

The government accused France and Russia of threatening Spanish peace.

Advises Seeking Lowered Tariffs

TORONTO, (CP) Canadian manufacturers have for consideration a recommendation that they should take the lead in seeking lower tariffs.

J. B. Carswell, former munitions department executive and now a business consultant in Washington, made the suggestion to the Canadian Manufacturers' association convention.

Mr Carswell said increased imports were essential to sound business. Lower tariffs were necessary to expand import trade and they would come only if they were sought by manufacturers -- regarded as the traditional opponents of low tariffs.

Mr. Carswell said it was in the manufacturers' interest that imports should exceed exports. The theory that an excess of exports meant a favorable balance had been outdated and Canada had become a creditor instead of a debtor nation.

Mass 600 Non-Union Seamen To Get Lake Ships Moving

MONTREAL, (CP) -- Some 600 able-bodied men shortly will leave Montreal for Cornwall on a special train chartered by inland ship operators with orders to "get the ships out of Cornwall with or without the aid of the authorities," a spokesman for the shipowners said Thursday.

"Our men will be instructed to co-operate with provincial police and local authorities if those bodies are willing to co-operate," he said, "but our ships are going through."

The spokesman said the operators believe the government considers the inland seamen's strike too big for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and that Ottawa does not want to call out the militia.

The tieup at Cornwall has been one of the "tense situations" of the Canadian Seamen's strike as it nears the end of its second week.

Dewar Ferguson, vice-president of the C.S.U., at Toronto, declared such irresponsible statements of the ship owners in open defiance of the constituted authorities will be condemned by every Canadian and will expose once and for all who are the instigators of violence in the present strike."

At Ottawa, Labor Minister Mitchell said "the situation is much brighter for settlement" of the strike.

He met representatives of the operators Wednesday, officials of the union Thursday.

He seemed hopeful a compromise might follow a union meeting Friday and an operators talk Monday.

Soviet, Argentina Become Friendly

LONDON, (CP) --Russia and Argentina have established diplomatic relations, the Moscow radio announced Thursday night.

The announcement said "the two governments have decided to exchange ambassadors in the very near future.

Moslems Accept British Scheme

NEW DELHI, (AP) -- The Moslem league's council Thursday night accepted the British cabinet mission's plan for an independent federated union of India, but reiterated that establishment of a separate Moslem state (Pakistan) remained the Moslems' "unalterable objective."

The council for the league, which claims to be the spokesman for 90,000,000 Moslems in India, said its action was "prompted by its earnest desire for a peaceful solution, if possible, of the Indian problem."

P.I.C.A.O.'s temporary headquarters have been in Montreal and it is unlikely any change will be made.

Plans Are Outlined For Indian Hospital

By Richard Sanburn

Ottawa - Completion of the fitting up of the new hospital in Edmonton for the care of tubercular Indians is in this year's estimates, Health Minister Brooke Claxton Thursday told the joint committee reviewing Indian affairs.

The Edmonton hospital, formerly the Jesuit college, will be fitted up to provide a total of 400 beds, of which 100 are earmarked for veterans and another 100 earmarked for veterans for a limited period.

Family allowances totalling $3,610,000 a year are being paid to about 18,300 Indian and Eskimo families with 55,000 children

Acquittal Is Given In Damage Charge

George Hodgson, who previously had been credited for the "wild pitch" which caused a mustard pot to be thrown through the front window of the Puritan cafe, 97 st., last Tuesday night was cleared of blame in city police court Thursday when a charge of wilful damage against him was dismissed.

The legal branch of the department of veterans' affairs investigated the case and found three witnesses who claimed that a girl, and not Hodgson had been responsible for the window breaking.

Millions in London Prepare For Great Victory Parade

By Basil Dean

LONDON, -- London's Victory Day Invasion bids fair to make the great Coronation rush of 1937 look like small time stuff. Two million visitors are expected and Wednesday they were streaming into the capital prepared, if necessary, to sleep in the open. They will be sleeping in hundreds on sidewalks along the Victory parade route.

Thousands of sophisticated Londoners who scoffed at the whole Victory celebration notion have now caught festival fever. This week's appearance of streams of bunting in Trafalgar Square and massed flag displays on big stores and along main streets, has changed London's whole atmosphere and has fired many cynics with enthusiasm.

Green Park, flanking the Mall where His Majesty the King will take the salute, is filled with a spectacular display of aircraft which form virtually a pocket history of air operations in the Second World War.

Preparations for the parade now have a hurried air about them. All over London, workmen are frantically busy, erecting decorations.

Find Red Deer Man Dead in Police Cell

Investigation into the death in R.C.M.P. cells at Red Deer Wednesday of Donald Van Slyke, young Red Deer veteran, was intensified Thursday with the arrival of R.C.M.P. from Edmonton.

The veteran, who was arrested on a drunk charge when he appeared to be intoxicated, was found dead in his cell at 7:30 a.m.

An autopsy revealed Van Slyke suffered internal injuries. It is believed he may have been struck by a car prior to his arrest.

L. K. Liggett Dies

NEW YORK, (CP) -- Louis K. Liggett, 71, founder of the drug store chain which bears his name, died in Washington.

Citizens Shocked As Church Steeple Blares Forth Spike Jones' Music

Residents of Red Deer were startled recently when a wild call for "Chloe," rang out from the steeple of St. Luke's Anglican church.

As the call died away an orchestra took up the refrain, magnified by the full power of an electric chimes and loud speaker system newly-installed in the steeple and designed to play the chimes from records.

The recording, played by Spike Jones and his orchestra, blared out for several minutes before quiet again descended.

Investigation revealed the un-scheduled concert was provided by practical jokers who placed the record on the turntable and then vanished.

Rev. George W. Lang, rector of St. Luke's, said he telephoned police, who reached the church just as the record ended. "It was undoubtedly the work of pranksters," he added, "and might have been funny had it not been a flagrant act of desecration."

The set of chimes, gift of an anonymous donor, was consecrated two weeks ago by Rt. Rev. R. H. Ragg, Anglican bishop of Calgary, for the broadcasting of hymns and sacred music.

Mexico and Costa Rica have been growing more friendly and neighborly during recent years. Mexico City officials point out. As two of the most stable countries in Latin America, they find their interests constantly drawing them closer together, the observers declare.

Australian Air Force men awaiting demobilization are put to work at whatever job needs to be done. The City officials point out. As two of one they object to most, Southport reports, is making a race course for civilians. One "Digger" said he knew now how conscientious objectors felt.

Ban Use of "Sir" In Canadian Club

DOETINCHEN, Holland. — It was an offence punishable by grand whacks from the ceremonial cane to use "sir" in one of the Canadian army's few "all ranks club" operated by the Fort Garry Horse armored Brigade of Winnipeg in this town. Known as the "Coffee Club," its was organized as a recreational meeting place and conversation centre.

Free coffee, biscuits and sandwiches were served to officers, other ranks and their civilian female and male guests in well-furnished lounges. Officers helped serve in the club which was run on "acrounge" principles, with an initial membership fee of 20 cigarettes which were used as barter for extras.

Lieut. Bert Forrester, Kelvington, Sask., was "Grand Vizier," with Capt. Frank P. Davidson, New York, as "Grand Potentate." Tr. Bob Wright, Sherritt Gordon, Man., was "grand steward" and grand treasurer" was Tr. Ralph Argue, Mather, Man.; Auxiliary Services Supervisor Stan Hill, Y.M.C.A., Toronto, helped furnish and supply the club.

After evenings in the club, a unit bus service was provided which took the men and their girl friends home, then retraced the route 30 minutes later to pick up the men. The bus run was operated by Lieut. Barney Dowling of Winnipeg.

Dutch police attended the club dances and girls considered under age, or not fit company for the men, were courteously escorted home. To answer questions on Canada the men were divided into panels representative of each province and delivered talks on their parts of Canada to the elder folk of the town as well as children, invited to lunch in the men's mess on "talk days."

Symbolic of the close co-operation between unit and town was the direct line between the burgomaster's office and that of the adjutant, Capt. A. H. Holmes of Assiniboine, Sask. Behind the whole undertaking was the commanding office, Lt.-Col. Eric Wilson of Toronto, who master-minded the project from the day the unit moved into Doetinchen until its departure Nov. 30.

Rights Restored To African Tribe

KURUMAN, British Bechuanaland —The Bechuana tribe of Bathlaros (People of the Wild Olive) has at last redeemed itself after rebelling 46 years ago and as a reward the tribesmen again have a paramount chief. He is the grandson of the last chief who was killed in the rebellion, staged as a protest against the annexation of Bechuanaland by the whites.

Robanyane Tote is the new chief of the Bathlaros. He was discovered only after a long search by officials of the native affairs department. They found him working at his trade as watchmaker in Vryburg.

At a largely-attended and colorful ceremony on the edge of the Kalahari desert, near Kuruman, the new chief was installed by the secretary for native affairs, W. J. G. Mears, who presented him with a framed certificate of approval from the officer administering the government.

Part of the ceremony was the traditional pointing-out of the new chief by the headmen and elders of the tribe, who placed a leopard skin over him and installed him in office. The new chief has administrative jurisdiction over his tribal portion of the Kuruman district and he can preside over all trials except those for murder, treason and rape.

In their request for a paramount chief, made some time ago to the government, the Bathlaros said that, despite the South African War, the children of Queen Victoria and their former enemies were now friends. The tribe, therefore, should also be forgiven and granted more freedom, as well as the right to restore tribalism and ancient customs.

WOOD MAKES MEAT

Friedrich Bergius, Austrian professor and inventor of synthetic oil, claims to have discovered how to make synthetic meat from wood, Vienna reports. The meat is said to contain as much fat and albumin as ordinary meat and to have the same calorie value. "Will you have elm or beech cutlets, sir? We have airioin poplar today—or would you prefer a nice teak steak?" may eventually be a waiter's query.

Giant Panda Newest Favorite of Visitors to London Zoo

Not since the blitz has there been so much excitement in England's capital as that caused by the arrival of a giant panda from China at the London zoo. The panda, who rejoices in the name of Miss Lien Hop—sometimes called Unity—was flown to London, a distance of 10,000 miles. Little Alison Ewen, one of the early visitors, is feeding the animal tender bamboo shoots, one of its favorite foods.

WHAT IS LANTIGEN?

Lantigen is a dissolved Vaccine containing such dissolved Micro-organisms which are peculiar to the particular disease requiring treatment. It contains no live germs. They are all destroyed by dissolving, thus releasing the antigens contained therein—the natural antidote.

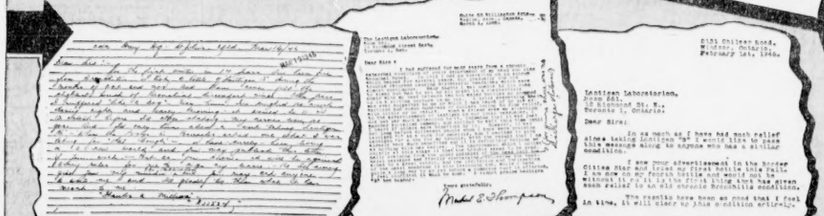

Lantigen works two ways; firstly, by absorbing into open tissue such as the tongue, throat, and intestinal tracts; secondly, it is operative by means of its distribution through the alimentary—stomach—system.

LANTIGEN, A DISSOLVED VACCINE TO BE TAKEN BY MOUTH

To raise the defense of the body against this bacterial infection, LANTIGEN has prepared a special oral vaccine made from the organisms which cause the condition. Taken as directed the dissolved antigens cause an increase in the formation of antibodies to appear in the bloodstream. This is the greatest defense in the body against infection. The designation of this member of the series is LANTIGEN 'B'.

"ROGER," SAID ROGER

"Roger was a flight-lieutenant. He still uses a lot of Air Force words. But when I serve Lipton's Tea and hear him shout 'Roger,' I know I have made a 'happy landing'."

Yes, the brisk flavour of Lipton's Tea has everybody's O.K. Even the experts say Lipton's Tea has brisk flavour . . . never dull, never wishy washy . . . always tangy, spirited and full-bodied. Change today to brisk tasting Lipton's Tea.

"Yes Frank, there's a whole tangle of troubles to be straightened out all over the world. Makes your head swim to think of it."

"And yet, Jim, most of it springs from one cause . . . suspicion. You and I wouldn't be very good neighbours if we suspected each other of all sorts of skullduggery. Actually, what the world needs is more good neighbours."

"Yes, the life insurance business is a good example. British life insurance companies have had offices in Canada since 1833 and several of our Canadian companies are well known throughout the United Kingdom."

"What about American companies?"

"We found it good business to be good neighbours with the American life insurance companies. We welcome them here. They carry almost one-third of all the life insurance in force in Canada. And our Canadian companies are well liked in the U.S.A. where they do a large and increasing business. As a matter of fact, they are well and favourably known throughout the world. Nearly half the business of the Canadian companies is outside Canada."

Life insurance is truly an international business—a neighbourly business. At home Canadians buy their life insurance as they choose from British or United States or Canadian companies. Clever women are always on the look-out for labor-saving devices to shorten working hours and to lengthen the hours of leisure.

Clever women put forth every effort to prevent illness. They use antiseptics freely to protect their family from infection.

Scarcities Come High

With building materials and equipment supplies dwindling toward the vanishing point, building permits have taken on new significance. They are interesting now as statistics, and indicators of what could happen but won't; not as an showing the amount of construction that will be done before the end of the year. To a very large degree they represent hopes certain to be frustrated, plans which will not be realized.

The total of permits issued in Edmonton is now around the $7,000,000 mark. That is the sum which would be translated into habitable houses and business premises in this city during the present year if materials and labor were available, taking no account of projects for which permits have not as yet been taken out. What fraction of this ideal construction program will be carried out is guesswork. Even the basis for guessing is wanting, for no one knows how much lumber and other essentials will be obtainable.

This large total is the indicator of how much Edmonton is losing, in the circulation of money and in the construction of homes and business places, because of the existing scarcities. Jobs are fewer and wage envelopes fewer, to a degree which cannot be exactly calculated but which plainly must be large.

Under-production is hitting Edmonton hard, as it is hitting every other community, and every person.

Don't Waste Any

Canadians who have turned in to the Government meat coupons which they did not need, or which they were willing to get along without, have the great satisfaction of knowing that they have done something worth while to help the hungry people overseas.

Enough of these unused coupons have been turned in and cancelled that the Meat Board is able to requisition an extra 250,000 pounds of canned meat to be shipped to Europe by U.N.R.R.A.

No person in Canada is any worse, physically or otherwise, because this much of the national supply was thus diverted to Europe through the voluntary self-denial of coupon-holders. And every one who thus sent a pound or so of meat to people who never get a square Canadian meal must feel better for having done so.

No meat coupon should be wasted. Those which are not required, or which can be done without, should be turned in to the local ration board before they expire. The amount of meat the coupons call for will find its way to tables where this kind of food is a luxury; people to whom the taste may be only a tantalizing memory.

The Little Man Pays

The question of what earning classes in Canada pay the bulk of income tax revenue is answered conclusively in a report by the department of national revenue, which contains a survey of the incidence of personal income tax.

This report makes it clear that it is the small wage earner, and not the rich, who carry the major portion of the income tax burden.

There were only 65,500 persons who received in 1945, incomes over $5000. On the other hand, 2,229,500 persons had incomes of less than $5000. The total income of individuals subject to the tax in 1945 was $4,542,911,000 with $3,882,546,000 going to persons who earned $5000 or less.

In short, 85 percent of the total income was received by the lower income groups. Persons whose incomes were $3000 or less totalled $3,356,475,000 or 73 percent of all earned income.

The income tax total for the year is estimated at $681,766,000. Of this amount the small income group ($5000 or less) paid $403,898,000 or 52 percent. Incomes above $5000 totalled $660,365,000 from which taxes amounting to $277,868,000 were paid.

A New Adventure

The Italian voters, it is unofficially announced, voted to abolish the monarchy and set up a republic. The only surprise in the news is that the votes seem to have run in the ratio of about five to four. A more decisive verdict, even approaching unanimity, could have been expected.

For the decision was based directly on the record of Victor Emmanual in his relation to Mussolini. Its disastrous consequences aside, that record is a catalog of errors; and King Humberto did not have time to live down his father's memory. Victor Emmanuel's chief claim to personality is that he knew when to quit and get out.

The rejection of the monarchy is a minor matter. Victor was only the third to wear the crown since Italy was united by the efforts of Garibaldi.

The important question is whether the Italian people, who have very definite lines of cleavage, will develop enough cohesion to work out the reconstruction of their ruined country under a republican system of government. That will be a new experiment for them.

Fresh Fish By Air

A member of the staff of St. Francis Xavier University has written a pamphlet in which he predicts that in a few years airplanes will fly fresh fish from the Canadian seaboards to every inland point in the country.

If this happens it will be splendid thing for fishermen. And it will be a wonderful thing for communities like Edmonton, where the true tang of fresh-caught fish is practically unknown.

It is true that refrigeration keeps fish from spoiling. But it does not retain that delicious flavor that is found only in a fish a few hours out of the water. One hopes that the St. Francis Xavier man is a sound prophet

The Mikhailovitch Case

By Dorothy Thompson

The committee of South Slavic Americans has published a pamphlet summarizing the evidence against General Mikhailovitch.

Meanwhile, the commission set up for a fair trial has taken evidence from American personnel attached to Mikhailovitch's headquarters or rescued by him and has published its finding. The Jugoslav embassy in Washington, representing Mikhailovitch's accusers, was invited to send persons to cross-examine the American witnesses. They refused.

The evidence presented by the two committees is contradictory. But a study of both reports does throw light on Jugoslavia from the beginning of 1942 until the end of the war.

King Peter's government entered the war against the Axis through a revolt in March 1941. Mikhailovitch became commander of the guerrilla armies, the Chetniks. The Serbian population welcomed establishment of an "independent" pro-Axis state. Resistance depended on the Serbs. King Peter's government, dilapidated with Croatian behavior, developed a strong Serbian policy.

Only when Russia was attacked did a new resistance movement spring up, definitely Communist -- and therefore also without popular roots -- anti-Axis, anti-Chetnik, and fighting for a totally different objective than Mikhailovitch's. The result was civil war combined with war against the Germans and Italians. It is the charge of the anti-Mikhailovitch pamphlet that he abandoned the fight against the Germans and Italians only to fight the Partisans, and evidence is presented, to show he assisted the Italians in particular in their struggle against the Partisans. But American officers testified that Chetniks were fallen upon in the rear by Partisans. The probability is that the Axis did its best to foment one resistance movement against the other.

Mikhailovitch is now being tried for treason by his opponents who, in this case, are prosecutor, Judge, and jury. The trial will never unravel the threads of the tragic Jugoslav events, for it is to the interest of the prosecution, which has already presented the verdict, to suppress the complete story of the civil war.

Today in Europe

By Randolph Churchill

PARIS -- It seems unfortunate that four great powers have been unable to agree as to the future of Austria. Austria is one area where rival interests are at a minimum.

At Yalta, it was decided that Austria should be given independence. This was based on realization that Germany would always remain potentially the strongest power in Europe. Therefore, any permanent diminution in manpower and area must contribute to European peace.

Long before Hitler annexed Austria there was a large Austrian minority which favored an "anschluss". There will also be a certain nostalgic desire, if only of sentimentality, results with Germany, for Germany will always exert a powerful magnetism over her neighbor.

How can this tendency be arrested? Temporarily, by the dictates of victorious powers. But the long-term peace of Europe must rest on sounder foundations. The only way to discourage Anschluss is by according Austria more favorable treatment and ensuring that her citizens can lead self-respecting and prosperous lives.

The best sign is there of this? Austria, a tiny country of 6,000,000 inhabitants, is still split into four zones and occupied by four separate armies which have to feed, supply and house. It's doubtful if many Austrians look back upon their "liberation" by the Allies with any satisfaction than they were "liberated" by Hitler.

The Western allies are not blind to these considerations. The Russians are the stumbling block to an enlightened solution. The British, French and Americans would like to evacuate Austria and leave the Austrians to manage their own affairs.

Unless the Russians mean to stay in Austria forever, it's hard to see how their present policy accords with their own interest which is to ensure that Germany and Austria remain divided.

Bevin's Challenge

Foreign Secretary Bevin's speech on Russia this week sounded like a somewhat more ominous echo of that made by Secretary of State Byrnes last week.

In both speeches there was the same note of irritation, of patience strained to the breaking point, of unconcealed distrust for the Soviet Union.

This note, however, was much stronger in Bevin's address. At times, as he carefully set out and justified the British position, and enumerated his causes of complaint against the Russians, his hearers must have expected him to announce that all attempts at Big Three co-operation had been abandoned.

It was the sort of speech which, in the past, has often ushered in a crisis.

In his analysis of the causes of friction between Britain and Russia, the foreign secretary went over familiar ground -- Trieste, the disarmament of Germany, the control of the Dardanelles and the future of Turkey. On all these matters he left the impression that the British position was now fixed, and that no further concessions could be expected.

Besides this, however, he gave great emphasis to an issue of which little has been heard before. This was the matter of the navigation of the Danube and other eastern European rivers, and the unequally thorny question of British and American trade in the Danubian countries. He indicated that the Soviet authorities were trying to create a commercial monopoly in these regions and exclude foreign traders, and that Britain was determined not to be excluded.

Vague reports of disputes on this issue have been heard occasionally, but this is the first time the matter has come into the open.

The western powers place great value on their trade with the Danubian countries, and are prepared to risk serious diplomatic difficulties to prevent these nations being included in the closed Soviet economic system. This commercial dispute incidentally, goes far to explain the interest Washington and London have shown in the establishment of "democratic" governments in Rumania and Bulgaria.

Despite his emphasis on the disputes and disagreements between the Big Three, Bevin, like Byrnes before him, did not shut the door to further co-operation. He emphasized his offer of a fifty-year treaty with Russia, and urged the necessity of another effort to reach an agreement at the adjourned foreign ministers' conference this month.

If that effort failed, however, he declares he will insist on a general conference of the principal belligerent powers to work out a European settlement with or without Russia.

The next move -- conciliatory or hostile -- is up to Moscow.

Taxing M.L.A.'s

In deciding the test case brought by J.C. Mahaffy M.L.A., the Supreme Court of Canada has held that the personal indemnities of members of the provincial legislatures are subject to income tax on the same basis as any other income. A member may not deduct the travelling and living expenses he incurs in attending a session. That privilege the members of the federal parliament have apparently reserved for themselves.

The court's decision may nullify the action of some provincial legislatures in voting an extra thousand dollars for "expenses". It will also pose a problem for Ontario, which announced last April it would declare its legislative members' whole idemnity "tax free".

In fact, the federal members' special two-thousand dollar tax-free expense money may be called into question also, as a result of the Supreme Court's ruling.

Tomatoes, it is said, were first eaten by the ancient Incas. But it was the white man who first started throwing them.

Hungary has given the world some pointers on what to do with an outdated navy; the Hungarians are using their old Danube gunboats for smuggling.

Loggers at Banff

Two messages delivered to the thousand delegates from all over the continent, attending the Pacific Logging Congress at Banff, are worthy of note by a far wider audience.

Premier Manning's reminder that Alberta had a vital interest in the industry, because the prairies would be an arid desert if it were not for the forested eastern slopes of the Rockies, is timely. And linked with it is the appeal of President Anderson to federal and provincial governments to provide greater protection for our forests.

At the moment, negotiations are still in progress between the dominion government and Alberta on the future of the Rocky Mountain watershed. Nothing has been said about the discussions since Alberta's Minister of Lands and Mines Tanner returned from Ottawa a month or so ago.

The dominion, at last reports, was ready to assume the full cost of maintaining the forests, provided it were given exclusive control of the timber on the eastern slopes. This, however, is too great a demand by Ottawa and is one which the province rightly opposes on practical as well as legal grounds.

The British North America Act very clearly gives the provinces the right to "the management and sale of public lands belonging to the province and of the timber and wood thereon".

Fire protection and forestation services, thus are primarily the responsibility of the province, but as the three prairie provinces depend on the Rocky Mountain watershed, it is fitting that the dominion should assist in these tasks.

It should not be too hard for the two governments to agree on the cooperative measures necessary to maintain the watershed and yet permit scientific timber cutting.

Stettinius Resigns

The resignation of Edward R. Stettinius as United States representative on the United Nations security council has brought a temporary halt to one of the most meteoric careers in modern American history.

Both in industry and in politics, Stettinius' rise was like that of a skyrocket.

Starting in the stock room at General Motors, he was vice-president of the company by the time he was 31. At 37, he was chairman of the board at United States Steel.

His advancement in the political field was even more rapid. In 1939 he came to Washington as a member of an industrial advisory board. By the end of 1944 he had become secretary of state. In between he had been director of the wartime industrial priorities organization, administrator of lend-lease and under-secretary of state.

This rapid rise was primarily due to his unusual ability as an organizer and "public-relations man". He made extremely valuable contributions to the winning of the war, especially as lend-lease administrator. He directed the distribution of over sixty billion dollars' worth of supplies to America's allies, and, almost single handed, persuaded congress to maintain the necessary appropriations throughout the war.

He played a leading part in the negotiations at Dumbarton Oaks and at San Francisco, which led to the establishment of the United Nations. He was given much of the credit for persuading the Russians to join.

San Francisco, indeed, was the high-water mark of his career. Soon after, he was transferred to the security council and James F. Byrnes succeeded him as secretary of state. The reason for the change was that, as senior member of the cabinet, he would have been in line for the presidency if anything happened to Mr. Truman; and administration leaders could not endure the thought that anyone not a regular Democrat should become president.

One may safely predict, that a man so capable and so energetic will not long remain in obscurity.

We'll probably be complaining about the heat soon.

In Korea, American military authorities have had to explain to an ambitious printer that "freedom of the press" does not include the right to print counterfeit money.

The Third Column

LONDON LETTER

By Basil Dean

LONDON, -- Thoughtful Britons are wondering whether their traditional system of cabinet government has grown too cumbersome for the times.

As in Canada, there are periodic complaints here that the country is "over-governed", that the bare mechanics of keeping the enormous administrative machine moving occupy so much time and effort on the part of all cabinet ministers, that they have no time to do their real job, which is to think and plan.

But, unlike Ottawa, Whitehall is responsible for all public administration; there are no provincial cabinets with jurisdiction over important fields of government. England, Wales and Scotland are administered as one complete unit (with certain modifications for particular Scottish requirements), and the whole weight of that administration falls on the shoulders of Whitehall's many departments.

While Canada's main governmental problem is the redivision of responsibility between Ottawa and the provincial capitals, Britain's problem is, on the face of it, much less complex; but at the same time it is much more difficult to solve.

There are 19 ministers in the Canadian federal cabinet, of whom roughly a dozen may be termed "senior ministers." In the British cabinet - which also has to run departments that in Canada are left to the provinces - there are 32 ministers all told, 20 of them in the cabinet proper and the other 12 (e.g. the food minister, supply minister, minister of town and country planning) of "cabinet rank" but who do not attend cabinet meetings.

X X X

The trouble is that the machine has become far too big. A committee of 20 ministers is almost like a small parliament or city council; it cannot conduct business by accepted committee methods. A conscientious cabinet minister, aware of the traditional doctrine of "collective responsibility", is supposed to know what is happening in other departments, but can scarcely be expected to do any such thing when there are 32 departments. Furthermore, he has quite enough trouble keeping track of what goes on in his own bailiwick.

Winston Churchill, during World War II, followed the Lloyd George system of World War I with his "war cabinet", a very small group of senior ministers who ran the war machine and made all the policy decisions. This, in peace-time, will not work. It is theoretically possible to install a few super-ministers responsible for broad policy in several related departments; but the immediate head of each of those departments is the man who must accept responsibility before Parliament and answer questions about his conduct of office; he could scarcely do this if his policy decisions were handed down from a super-minister at an even higher level.

X X X

In a closely-reasoned lecture delivered recently at Oxford university, Sir John Anderson, one of Churchill's war cabinet members, examined the issue extensively. He agreed that the cabinet system, which worked admirably in the simpler days of the 18th 19th centuries, has grown obsolete in the 20th. Sir Wilfrid, who was formerly a senior civil servant before he entered politics and who therefore speaks with double authority, turned his mind to the solution which was proposed long before World War II; that solution envisaged the consolidation of existing government departments into a much smaller number of super-ministries with a responsible cabinet minister at the head of each. The divisions of these departments would be run by deputy-ministers or under-secretaries.

Instead, Sir John suggested the extension of the idea of cabinet committees. There would be about six of these - one each for defence, external economic affairs, internal economic affairs, foreign affairs, social services and legislation.

Battling Icebergs In North 42 Years

TIMMINS. — For 42 years gray-haired and be-spectacled Capt. Jens Ole Nielsen has plowed past the teeming icebergs of Hudson and James bays. In all this 42 years of skimming salt water, the 61-year-old skipper has never once ventured out into the Atlantic as a master of an ocean-going vessel and expects to retire in four years without breaking his record.

Quite content to sail the northern bays and rivers during his nearly half a century in the north, he "wore out" four ships totalling 336 tons.

At present he is visiting his wife, Clementine, and his family in Timmins on winter vacation, from his Moosonee post as master of the Hudson's Bay Company schooner Fort Severn.

Skipper Nielsen is a Dane, measures "only" five feet 10 inches in in height, but maintains that what he lacks in height, he makes up for in width. He wears size 52 suits with 20-inch shirt collars and tips the scales at 247 pounds.

The skipper was only 14 years old when he took to the water as a cabin boy aboard Danish ships. When he was 19 he set sail for Canada as a crew-member of the Hudson's Bay Company ship Lady Head, which he joined in England. That was 1903, and his first Canadian winter was spent in Moosonee. Next fall he joined Revillon Brothers and sailed for that firm for 23 years after which he returned to the Hudson's Bay Company in the fall of 1926.

"Sailing the bays and rivers of the north is a treacherous business," Nielsen says. "You never know what you'll run into next." He has been caught in ice-floes. He has been in ships when the propellors were knocked out by ice. One ship he was in had her bottom ripped out. He knows what it is to be out in thick fog with icebergs looming in the frozen waters.

Skipper Nielsen knows every bay and inlet in the northern waters. Along the route from Moosonee to Charlton Island and Great Whale river are countless islands where fur traders have been carrying on business for 260 years. There, posts were established by the Hudson's Bay and Revillon trading rivals, to intercept the Indians bringing home their furs. The skipper remembers those days during the last war, when he himself trekked for miles with his dog teams in the bitter cold to get furs before his rivals could.

Very fond of the Eskimos, Skipper Nielsen believes they deserve a great deal of credit for the way they live. "They're wonderful people and every time I see an Eskimo, I feel ashamed of myself for being white," he said. "Civilizing Eskimos has been responsible for their going astray. Once they became so-called civilized, they'd go ahead and steal and do all sorts of things and blame

A grocer who started his business in an old post office building in 1941 attributes his 1945 business of over $200,000 in a town of 2,000 to "a steady, strong newspaper advertising schedule."

More and more manufacturers are advertising their products in the daily newspapers of Canada. The increase in such advertising in 1945 over 1944 was more than eight per cent.

Britain's wool-textile mills produced over 618,000,000 yards of cloth for the fighting services, turning out battledress serge at the rate of 1,250,000 yards a week.

Ancient War Club Of Indians Found

MANITOWANING, Manitoulin Island, Ont.—Two Indian relics of the War of 1812 belonging to the Ottawa chief "Blackbird" have been discovered in this Indian department capital of Manitoulin Island.

The war club of Blackbird or Assikinack was obtained years ago by his grandson, Benwi Assikinack of Wikemikong and now is part of a fine collection of Indian weapons gathered by the late John Reynolds. The two-foot, curved club with its heavily knobbed end was wielded by Assikinack when he led the Pottawatomies and Ottawas in the capture of Fort Dearborn (Chicago) and the slaughter of its garrison, August, 1812.

A carved bird's head at the outer end of the club is the chief's mark of possession.

The other trophy is a silver medal with the image of George III's head on one side and the British coat of arms on the reverse side. This "loyalty" medal was presented to Chief Blackbird by Lt.-Col. Robert McDowall, commandant at Drummond Island, in 1815 for service during the war.

Assikinack kept his two treasures while he was interpreter with the Canadian garrison at Drummond Island and took them with him to Manitoulin Island about 1830 when he led his people from L'Arbre Croche, Mich., to Wikemikong.

The fourth generation of the Assikinack family, now living on the site of the old chief's home, say the old chief's best trophy "never came to Manitoulin Island." This was an American captain's sword, surrendered to Assikinack at Chicago at the end of the battle. The sword was lost when the village of L'Arbre Croche, Lake Michigan, dispersed.

Noted by his people as an orator as well as a great warrior, the old chief died in November, 1866, at the age of 98.

Closed soince 1939, the 300-year-old Ewenny, England, hand pottery has just restarted, and is making V mugs.

If they have no previous service experience, applicants must be over 18 and under 26

Draft Master Builders' Code For Approval of City Council

Designed to protect homebuilders and the small commercial builder from shoddy workmanship and unfair trade practices, a master builders' code has been drafted by Maxwell C. Dewar, city architect. It has been submitted to the city commissioners with the recommendation that it be incorporated in the city's building by-law.

City Commissioner John Hodgson stated the proposed code would be submitted to the city council at its next meeting with a recommendation that it be sent to the by-laws committee for consideration and report.

The code provides for the licensing of all persons and firms engaged in the building industry and doing work by contract. This included plasterers, painters, electricians, floor finishers, and all trades allied to the industry.

The code provides also that before a license is issued a bond of $1,000 must be furnished guaranteeing that the licensee will carry out work in accordance with city building by-laws, and will conform to the regulations of the builders' code.

Full Program Is Planned Here For Long Holiday Week-end

Enthusiasm was the keynote Friday as residents of Edmonton and district prepared for their second holiday in less than a month on Monday, June 10, in observance of His Majesty the King's birthday which actually takes place Dec. 14. Full advantage will be taken of the long week-end.

The day has been declared a holiday by dominion, provincial and municipal rulings.

Rail company officials anticipated a last-minute rush of holiday travellers bound for nearby resorts.

It was expected that--weather conditions being favorable--most citizens would spend the day outdoors. Lakeside cottages which during recent week-ends have been repaired and put in shape for the season, were expected to be well patronized.

A 21-gun salute will echo through the city Monday noon in honor of the King's birthday. Four guns will be fired from the grounds of the legislative buildings by a battery of the 20th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, R.C.A.

A senior ball game at Renfrew park starting at 3:00 p.m. highlights the sports activities scheduled. Cardinals will meet the Cubs. Golf courses and tennis courts are expected to attract other sports fans.

All city swimming pools will be open through the day and evening.

In addition feature attractions will be shown in Edmonton motion picture theatres.

And there are always the front lawn, a deck chair and a good book.

There will be one delivery of mail Monday morning, according to T. J. Reilly, acting district director of postal service. Wickets in the main post office will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. Special delivery service and receipt and dispatch of mails will be carried on as usual.

Butchers Protest Beef Price Boost

Protests of Edmonton butchers against the rise in wholesale ceiling prices on graded beef form the basis of a brief taken to Ottawa Friday by A.C. Mackay, Alberta secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, according to A. F. Dreger of the city office of the association.

Butchers now pay four cents a pound more for graded beef than they paid before the ceiling was lifted. Some of them contend they are losing as much as $300 a week from their gross profits.

No Revenue Boost In Re-assessment

No increase in provincial revenue is anticipated as a result of the re-assessment of farm property in municipal districts, according to Hon. C. E. Gerhart, minister of municipal affairs.

The statement was made in answer to a report the government was using the re-assessment as a "subtle" form of increasing its revenue.

Canadian Troops At Royal Preview

By Norman Cribbens

LONDON, (CP cable)-- It was 1939 all over again for many Canadian servicemen and women who gathered Thursday with thousands of troops from the far-flung dominions and colonies of the British commonwealth of nations in Kensington Gardens for a royal preview of Saturday's V-E Day parade.

Sailors, soldiers and airmen with members of their sister services, who as prewar youngsters lined Canadian streets to cheer Their Majesties the King and Queen on the royal tour of Canada, saw them again.

The royal party's guard of honor was composed of members of the Canadian Provost corps.

Valiant Canadians Honored As French Observe D-Day

By Ross Munro

LONDON, (CP) -- In the Normandy seaside towns of Courseulles and Bernieres, French families remembered the Canadians Thursday on the second anniversary of D-Day -- June 6, 1944.

In simple gatherings led by the parish priest and the mayors of the towns, the French went down to the invasion beaches and recalled how the Canadians two years ago stormed ashore from the sea out of the morning mist in a threshing tumult of gunfire to smash through the Germans' "Atlantic wall" defences.

Three miles inland at Bany Sur Mer, there was a poignant ceremony when the people of that town placed flowers on graves in a large Canadian cemetery near the forest edge as they did on the first small plot of a dozen graves dug there on D-Day plus two.

In the ruins of Caen, Bretteville, Authie, Buron and Carpiquet where the Canadians fought and died there were other special remembrance gatherings.

This was a special day for the 3rd Canadian Division and the 2nd Canadian Armored Brigade -- the Canadian formations which landed from the sea on D-Day.

East of the Orne river in the green hedgerow country, the 1st Canadian parachute battalion which dropped with the British 6th airborne division before H-hour were not forgotten by the people of Le Mesnil where Canadian paratroopers fought a chaotic battle for 11 days to hold that important road junction.

Firemen Brave Searing Heat to Battle Stubborn Flames

Four of 11 streams on the blaze are shown in the above picture, as firemen scale a ladder in blistering heat to get closer to the fire centre. Firemen were able to confine the fire to the fourth floor.

Foreign Exchange Control May Stand For Three Years

By Torchy Anderson

OTTAWA, -- Foreign exchange control in Canada will continue for an indefinite period, certainly two or three years, and there is no immediate prospect of the premium on United States currency being changed.

This was apparent Wednesday when the Foreign Exchange Control board report was tabled in parliament.

Canadians who sacrificed trips to the United States in the dangerous days of 1940 and 1941 may have contributed importantly to help Canada retain its war buying power until effects of the Hyde Park agreements were felt.

Early in 1942, the report shows, Canada was down to a six weeks supply of U.S. gold and currency for which war purchases was needed. the reserve dropped to $174,000,000 at that time. This is disclosed for the first time officially in the report tabled.

While Canada's holdings of gold and U.S. currency rose to a record of $1,508,000,000 at the end of 1945 relative indebtedness to U.S. was virtually unchanged from 1939 -- three billion dollars.

Police in Search For Impersonators

William Gowarth, 10545 151 st. and John Stack 12953 113 st., are law-abiding citizens who have lots of respect for policemen ---- but not the pseudo types they met Wednesday evening. Stack was walking along a city street Wednesday evening when he was stopped by a man claiming to be a policeman who said, "I am going to give you five minutes to get out of town, and if you don't, I will give you three months in jail". As the alleged policeman wasn't in uniform, he was asked to identify himself, whereupon he attacked Mr. Stack striking him about the face and shoulders several times.

Meanwhile Mr. Gowarth was having trouble along the River Road below the Legislative buildings. His car stalled on the road and while he was there an auto drove up, a man climbed out and proceeded to search the stalled car. The searcher also claimed to be a policeman and, like Mr. Stack's assailant, he was without both uniform and identification.

City police are conducting an intensive search for the two men.

Calls On Ottawa Consult Provinces

By Richard Sanburn

OTTAWA, -- All three opposition parties put on the record Thursday their official attitudes toward the government's proposed redistribution policy.

The Progressive Conservatives, through Spokesman John Diefenbaker (Lake Centre) entered an amendment asking that the provinces be consulted before action is taken to amend the B.N.A. Act.

The C.C.F. party, through its leader M.J. Coldwell supported the resolution on the basis that it meant representation by population.

The Social Credit party, through Leader Solon Low, found the proposal "not at all unfair or unjust". He thought the provinces should be consulted.

Pittsburgh Pirates To Strike Unless Guild Recognized

PITTSBURGH, (AP) -- Robert Murphy, labor relations director of the American Baseball guild, declared Thursday Pittsburgh Pirates would go ahead with a strike today unless the management agrees to an election on the question of the guild recognition.

Murphy made his announcement after President William E. Benswanger of the Pirates called for settlement by "orderly legal" methods of the dispute. Benswanger said he expected tonight's game with New York Giants to be played as scheduled.

The guild representative retorted that the situation respecting the players was the same as Wednesday night when, he claimed, by a show of hands they voted to strike unless the guild demands for an election to determine a majority representative were met.

Benswanger, replying to Murphy's demand that the guild be recognized as collective-bergaining representative for the Pirate players, said it was "incredible" that "any club or ball players would be willing to take any other than means provided by "law" to settle the dispute. Benswanger said:

"At the close of our discussions with Mr. Murphy Wednesday, it was our understanding that he intended to go ahead with his case before the National Labor Relations board, in the usual way. We have had no word to the contrary from him.

"As far as we are concerned, the whole matter, including the timing of any election, is in the hands of the board.

"Accordingly, we expect that Friday's game with the Giants, and our other games, will be played on schedule."

Latest find is outfielder Emil Peroni, San Francisco, flychaser - slugger well know to Art Flores and other Golden Gate residents already on the scene ... Peroni will be fitted into the Cubs scheme of things ... Later in the month, around June 24, first baseman Tom Kelly will shake the sights of San Francisco's Market street for a long look at the snappy advertising that has converted Renfrew's inner wall into a veritable blaze of color.

It is hoped her trainer, Mrs. Tom Briggs, will be able to ready her for the Canadian derby at Winnipeg later in the season.

Members of most Regina tennis clubs have recently been shown movies of the great Don Budge in action...The film is supposedly educational in nature, interspersed with slow motion sequences and such as enable a watcher to get a clear picture of a tennis great getting over with his Sunday and other strokes...Might well pay the Edmonton District Tennis association to enquire about the chances of bringing Budge to a local "screen".

Swedish "Scarlet Pimpernel" Murdered by Hungarian Band

(Released by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

STOCKHOLM. — Raoul Wallenberg, attache at the Swedish legation in Budapest, who, in the closing days of 1944 directed the rescue of 20,000 Budapest Jews and who has been missing since February, 1945, was murdered by the Hungarian underworld, the authoritative Svenska Dagbladet reports.

This disclosure by the Svenska Dagbladet writes finis to a mystery that had long baffled the Swedish foreign office and had caused, in April, 1945, a serious Swedish-Soviet diplomatic incident. Swedish newspapers at that time accused Red army soldiers of having murdered Wallenberg along with other Swedish personnel during the looting of their legation in Budapest after that city's liberation.

Roosevelt Appeal

In the summer of 1944, Wallenberg, then 31, was sent to Budapest after President Roosevelt had appealed to King Gustav V of Sweden to intervene for the Hungarian Jews, then at the point of being taken to Germany for extermination. Aided by a staff of 300 volunteers, Wallenberg, in his role of Swedish "Scarlet Pimpernel," distributed "protective passports" to 20,000 Jews, 10,000 of whom were lodged and fed in residences especially rented by the legation.

"Members of the Hungarian underworld" had been engaged by Wallenberg to help distribute the passports to their beneficiaries. Some of the intermediaries had sold these passports instead, and were fearful lest the Swedish diplomat, aware of their behavior, should bring them to justice. The young attache himself "negotiated" the release of several thousand Jews who had been rounded up throughout the rest of Hungary for a death march to Vienna.

Legation Attacked

On Feb. 13, 1945, when Russian troops entered Budapest, the Swedish legation was sacked by a mob among whose numbers were Red army personnel. Several Swedes and a dozen Russians were killed when Red army personnel allegedly attempted to assault women workers at the legation. Newspapers here withheld publication of the attack at the request of the Swedish foreign office until April, when dramatic accounts of the "Battle of the Budapest Legation" and violent anti-Russian editorials were printed. Red army troops were accused of the killing of Wallenberg as well as the minor officials who lost their lives in the scuffle with the looters. Pravda denied the reports and accused the Swedish press of attempting to stir up hate against the Soviet.

Svenska Dagbladet's story now seems to vindicate the Russians so far as the death of Raoul Wallenberg is concerned. Its version of murder for pecuniary motives is the more plausible since the young diplomat, scion of one of Europe's wealthiest families—the Wallenbergs own the fabulously rich iron mines of Swedish Lapland and control the Enskilda bank, Sweden's greatest—was known to have been liberal in scattering money in bribes to help achieve the humanitarian mission with which the Swedish government, on President Roosevelt's request, had entrusted him. The murdered diplomat attended the University of Michigan in the United States in 1934 and 1935.

Control of Baghad, Irak, airport will be shifted from military to civilian control.

Mysteries of Sun's Corona Explained by Atom Blasts

By Thomas R. Henry
(Science Editor, North American Newspaper Alliance)

WASHINGTON. — A Hindoo mathematical astronomer may have solved the old mystery of the corona —the pearl-colored halo around the sun which is seen only during total eclipses.

For many years astronomers believed that its chief constituent—revealed in analysis of coronal light—was an element unknown elsewhere in the universe, which they called "coronium."

Within the past few years, however, coronium has been identified as a mixture of several well-known elements. But their atoms are in an extraordinary condition—iron with from nine to 13 electrons torn from each atom, nickel missing 11 to 13 electrons and calcium whose atom lacks 11 or 12 electrons.

The halo is thousands of miles from the sun's surface. It is extremely tenuous—probably more so than the inside of a vacuum tube. For atoms to be stripped of their electrons to such an extent, they would have to be subjected to millions of degrees of heat—such as is known only in the sun's interior. It is hard to conceive of any such heat in the corona, and no explanation of the strange phenomenon has yet been found.

Now the official journal of the Royal Astronomical society has published what seems to be a logical explanation by Prof. M. N. Saha, probably India's foremost astronomer. It could be explained, he says, on the basis of a continuous succession of "atom-bomb" explosions near the surface of the sun which eject completely stripped nuclei (of atoms) at terrific speeds. On their way outward, they pick up a few electrons. These become the mysterious stripped atoms of the corona.

Much the same intense radio-activity he believes responsible for the great whirlpools of fire observed on the sun's surface.

The weakest point in this theory, according to government astronomers here, is that no uranium has yet been found in the sun through analysis of its light. Considerable quantities of the explosive element thorium have, however, been identified.

The story of Eno's 'Fruit Salt' is a time-honoured one. Eno was first sold in a small chemist's shop in Newcastle, England, more than 75 years ago. Since then, through generation after generation, the use of Eno's 'Fruit Salt' has become almost second nature to us.

As a result of its record of service in millions of homes, Eno stands today in a class by itself. The dash of Eno in a glass of water before breakfast, when needed, is an ideal way to help keep fit. Eno helps nature to free the system of food wastes that often cause constipation, headaches, indigestion and that listless "morning-after" feeling. Eno's 'Fruit Salt' helps relieve excess gastric acidity. In addition, Eno helps maintain the alkaline constituents of the body.

Eno is pleasant and refreshing to take, gentle but effective in its action. Eno does not contain upsetting purgatives or harsh bitter salts—entirely free of sugar or artificial flavouring of any kind. Eno is safe for young and old alike—the true family favourite. THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW -:- -:- by Fagaly & Shorten

"Bob's such a young-looking Dad!"

Dad comes home with a springy step and sparkling smile. He's bright and cheerful as he says "Hello dear!" Just as keen as when he waved goodbye this morning. Yes, Mother and Dad, and in fact their parents too, realize what a help Eno's 'Fruit Salt' has been to fitness and health.

The story of Eno is a time-honoured one. For over 75 years a dash of Eno in a glass of water before breakfast, when needed, has helped many families to attain the health that comes from inner cleanliness.

Eno's 'Fruit Salt' is refreshing and pleasant to take. It will help sweeten the breath and relieve acid distress—so often the cause of headaches and indigestion. Eno is free of harsh, bitter salts—no sugar or artificial flavouring of any kind. Buy a bottle of Eno's 'Fruit Salt' today.

"LIFE'S BIGGER MOMENTS"

"... with all my worldly goods"

At the moment you slip that slender band of metal on Her finger, your mind is filled with such things as orange blossoms, wedding bells and train reservations. Later, when the hubbub and excitement more or less die down, you may pull up with a mental start and ask yourself: "WHAT worldly goods?"

That's a good time to reach for the telephone and get some friendly advice from the North American Life representative. He'll take a load off your mind by showing you how to create a substantial estate . . . an assured income for your First Lady for life.

You'll always be glad you called in the North American Life representative. He'll outline a practical plan that will fit your needs and your income.
